I am a psychologist with extensive experience in the field of neuropsychology. In addition, I have training and experience in crisis and trauma counselling, vocational counselling, play therapy, hypnotherapy and TRE. My interest in neuropsychology includes assessments, rehabilitation, education and counselling of children and adults with brain injury and their families. I also work with important others in their social circles and at school and/or at work with a view to reintegrating them back into their worlds as far as possible to re-establish their sense of self-dignity and purpose.
